Script Review — Episode 1 (sample)

Scene	Viewer should feel	Edit types	Why
1 Hook	Shock, recognition	Hard cuts; ECU inserts; text overlay	Fast cuts land the problem in under 3 s; the numbers on screen make it concrete
2 Set-up	Embarrassment, warmth	J-cut (Ah Ma's "Wait ah" before we see her); MCU shot/reverse	Sound leading the picture makes the call feel real and intimate
3 Turn	Surprise, curiosity	Cutaway (CU envelopes); match cut tin lid → banking app	The match cut links Ah Ma's habit to Rachel's modern version
4 Choice	Determination	Montage of three paydays; text overlay	Compresses months into seconds; the rule becomes memorable
5 Payoff	Relief, pride	Mirror the hook framing; held shot	The same framing with the opposite feeling shows the change
6 End card	Clarity	Static graphic; 3+ s hold	Readable call to action and disclaimer

Stronger alternatives: open scene 1 directly on the $1,400 quote (no establishing shot); end scene 5 on the small tin, not on Rachel's face.

Forecast: AI identity drift on Rachel's glasses (shot 4-5) → repeat the five traits and animate from the approved still; garbled envelope labels → add text in the editor; music over voice → duck 8 dB; missing disclaimer → end-card template.
